

QUICKBOOKS TIME FOR NONPROFITS

Time tracking for nonprofits

Improve financial and team management

QuickBooks Time

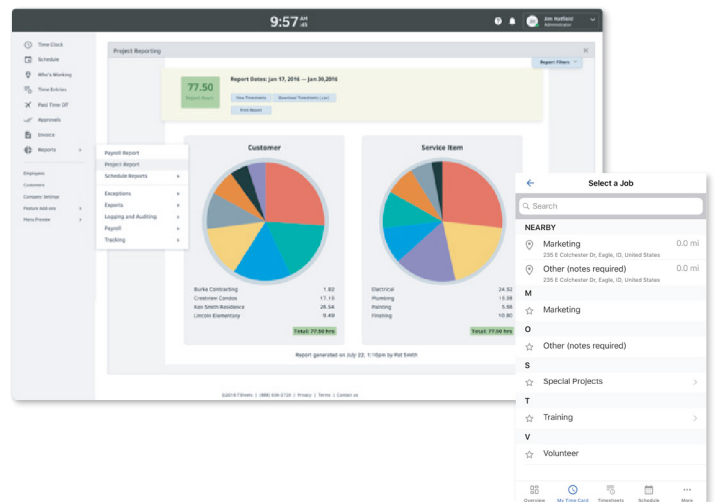

Whether your nonprofit uses paper schedules, spreadsheets, or an old-school punch clock to track time, managing workers and volunteers can be tricky without the proper systems. And tracking a nonprofit's financial performance can be downright impossible for organizations that want better insight into labor costs but don't have the systems to do so properly. QuickBooks Time's automated time tracking helps nonprofits save time on tasks and learn from time reports.

From building relationships with the community and rapport with donors to fundraising and recruiting volunteers, time is a luxury. And data, whether it's information on a donor to staffing and funding, is a prized commodity. But time data is essential to understand the true costs of a project or campaign. QuickBooks Time time data can keep nonprofits organized and focused on the mission, and it can help secure more funding.

Team management

Knowing how much time employees and volunteers spend on different projects will help nonprofits to create a more accurate budget and action plan. Having a handle on staffing also ensures a realistic timeline in delivering results to board members, donors, and grantors. Nonprofits can't be without time tracking and payroll records should an auditor come knocking.

Tracking time according to job codes means employees are accountable for the time they spend at each event - no minute goes unchecked. From the QuickBooks Time mobile app, employees can choose the job they're working on from a drop-down menu to clock in.

Financial management

Accurate records are crucial to securing grants and funding. But it doesn't end there. Once secured, nonprofits must report on how the money was used, and time tracking is an essential piece to this puzzle. Having real-time data helps to keep the budget in check, so there are no financial surprises.
