

eQuest Advantage Network FAQ

How does the Advantage Network work?

The Advantage Network is an eQuest managed collection of free job boards. Users can post their job listings to the Advantage Network and eQuest will send the post request to the most relevant of over 8000 potential job boards based on job description and job location.

The Advantage Network is comprised of:

- Search engines (including SEO enhancement)
- Major job board aggregators
- National outreach career sites
- Diversity sites
- Veterans sites
- LGBT
- Disabled
- Local community-based organizations

What boards currently comprise the Advantage Network?

Here is the list of Free Advantage boards, but it is important to remember that all jobs are not sent to all boards. eQuest determines their relevancy based on several parameters like industry, location, past performance and job type. Advantage is intended to use groups of boards that except free organic traffic to drive candidate traffic. If customers want to control or select the boards for posting they will need to use the eQuest Premium Posting solution.

Will my jobs post on every location?

No. Each job is reviewed to make sure that it is sent to the best corresponding career sites. This is done by reviewing the listed job title, skills, and location and sending your job to the best applicable network locations. There is no use posting a dental hygienist job to a board that specializes in IT professionals.

Also, eQuest send post requests to each of the targeted career sites. However, the career sites are not obligated to post each request and not all boards will post every request.
