

Snappy

Frequently Asked Questions

What is Snappy?

Snappy is an all-in-one enterprise gifting platform that helps organizations create connections through the power of giving.

How does Snappy integrate with ADP®?

Snappy integrates with ADP Workforce Now® and ADP Vantage HCM® to automatically sync your data across systems. That means when you make changes to employees in ADP they are automatically reflected in Snappy, saving you time on extra data entry and increasing security.

What's the main benefit of Snappy?

Instead of sending impersonal gift cards or traditional corporate branded pens, Snappy allows you to send gifts that your people actually want. Our solution allows them to choose their own gift that fits within your specified budget.

How secure is the solution?

Snappy is committed to high security standards to ensure your data is handled securely and with care. Each ADP Marketplace solution has passed a world-class security assessment to help safeguard the confidentiality and integrity of our clients' employee data.

Is Snappy customizable?

Snappy is fully customizable. You can customize your dashboard with your company logo — and take it a step further by customize your gifting campaigns, which collections to utilize, greetings, and our all-new gift reveal experience.

Can I get reports?

No more scrolling through spreadsheets to track your recognition spending. Our dashboard tracks all gifting activity and which recipients chose their gift — even showing you joyous thank you notes! You can generate detailed reports to see your current spend, and even see a projection of future gift spending on recurring campaigns like service anniversaries or birthdays.

Do I have to pre-purchase gifts?

No, with Snappy all of your gifting is on demand. No pre-purchasing or warehousing inventory.

What data needs to be shared to send a gift?

The only data needed is an email address or phone number. We'll collect the physical address from the gift recipient and ship their gift directly to the address provided.

About Snappy

Gift-giving is one of the oldest traditions of humankind. But its rich history got lost in the professional world. Gift-giving has become more like a transaction — think gift cards, monetary bonuses, bulk gift-buying.

It's not like when you were young and someone gave you a gift. Your imagination swirled. It was never really about what's inside the box, but that moment of pure wonder before the reveal. It brought a smile to your face. And that, was delight.

We believe that feeling should exist in every workplace. Because even though we left childhood magic behind, the spirit of gift-giving can live on today in the places that need it most. From a job well done to just a moment of fun, sharing delight with others is simpler than you think.

Our joy comes from making others happy!

Snappy was started out of a determination to connect people with the power of gratitude, and our vision to bring more joy to the world through giving hasn't changed one bit. As a team, this is the connection we all share. From our New York headquarters to our Tel Aviv, United Kingdom and Ukraine offices, you can find us in the places where happiness works.
