This Salesforce with ADP Workforce Now Integration Guide walks you step by step through what you need to know to easily integrate Salesforce with ADP.

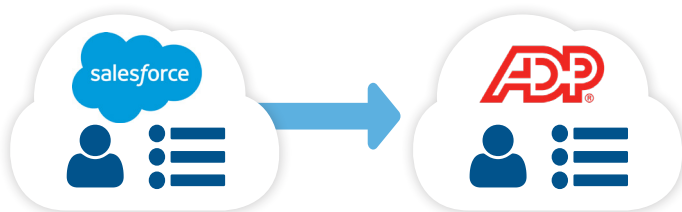

Step One: Choose your use case (or use cases)

Here are the four most popular uses case for integrating Salesforce with ADP Workforce Now, ADP Workforce Now Next Generation, or ADP Vantage HCM. With data integration from Flexspring, you only pay for the use case or use cases that you need.

- 1 New Hires from Salesforce to ADP. When a new employee is created, this integration automatically brings over new hire data from Salesforce into ADP with all employee data required to process payroll.

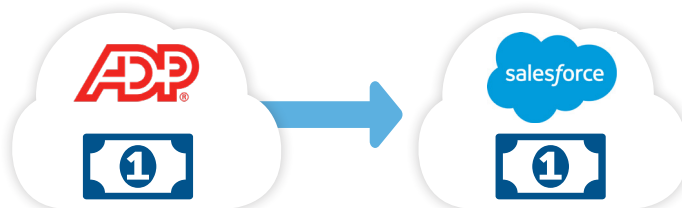

- 2 Employee Updates from Salesforce to ADP. As soon as employee data is updated in Salesforce (including promotions, terminations, and re-hires or any other customizable fields) data automatically updates in ADP. Data integration ensures that all employee data needed to process payroll is always up-to-date for current employees.

- 3 Time & Attendance Summaries from Salesforce to ADP. This integration eliminates the risk of manual data errors by automatically bringing over Time & Attendance Summaries from Salesforce to ADP for employees (including work hours, paid time off, vacation, and sick days) so that payroll may be accurately calculated in ADP Workforce Now.

- 4 Paycheck Data from ADP to Salesforce. This integration brings over employee paycheck data from ADP to Salesforce so that employees can easily access their payslip after every payroll cycle. Note: additional user interface fields must be created in Salesforce by your Salesforce administrator to view paycheck data in Salesforce.

Note: Salesforce is highly customizable (using Workbench and SOQL language). Flexspring's custom integrations can handle any complexity to share and map any data from Salesforce to ADP in near real-time via API.
