Increased peer support, better teamwork, improved workplace culture

Most people say that having a friend vastly improves the day-to-day at work, and encouragement from these friends can mean a lot. When you are recognized by your peers it can often be even more valuable than being recognized by a manager. With the tools available to you through our new recognition program, you can quickly and easily show appreciation for all of the people you work with at the company and build an even better culture of encouragement and teamwork.

Our new platform helps you show your appreciation for your coworkers with timely recognitions and encouragement on projects. As you support each other and earn points, you can spend them on tangible (and rewarding) rewards through Amazon and other vendors. Engage with your teammates, get to know other coworkers, and expand your support network all with our new recognition program.

“Connecting with people boosts our mood and our morale, and friendships provide us with the emotional and psychological strength to deal with whatever comes our way—whether an exciting opportunity, a challenge, or a crisis.”
